CYBER SECURITY FOR LAW FIRMS

With over 500 senior executives from the world of law and legal technology expected to attend, this full day conference and exhibition will explore the security threats and high-priority risk factors associated with cyber security and data protection within the legal sector.

With an emphasis on cyber protection, critical response and risk mitigation, the European Legal Security Forum 2019 will present over 30 leading experts from the world of cyber security who will deliver 'insider' knowledge to identify gaps within existing security whilst offering expert advice to protect law firms from on-going threats and breaches.

To ensure continuity and integrity of law firm data and operations, the European Legal Security Forum 2019 will examine the latest developments in cyber security. In addition, the agenda will evaluate the strategies and systems which can assist the legal sector in combating cyber threats, whilst offering optimal protection for today's modern law firm.

To compliment the significant nature of this event, the European Legal Security Forum 2019 will offer 3 presentation stages and 26 security related suppliers who will be showcasing the finest systems and solutions available to law firms and legal businesses.

TOPICS WILL INCLUDE:

- Establishing an IT security culture
- Threat landscape & vulnerabilities
- Law firm resilience & risk mitigation
- Safeguarding law firms & their clients
- Evaluating the IT threats of social media
- Why law firms are a top target for hackers
- Legal IT Security: Examining strategic initiatives
- Under cyber-siege: Critical response planning
- Exploiting vulnerabilities within the professions & much more...

JANE FRANKLAND

Owner and CEO
Cyber Security Capital

Jane Frankland is an award-winning entrepreneur, international speaker and best-selling author. She focuses on business strategy and high performance and is a world authority on attracting and retaining women in cybersecurity. She has been named as the third most influential person in cybersecurity in the UK and a top twenty global influencer.

Jane has over 20-years of experience in cybersecurity, has built and sold her own global hacking firm and served in executive positions at leading cybersecurity consultancies. In addition to managing her own company and parenting three children, she is a judge for three international awards, a board advisor for one of the world's most prestigious cybersecurity conferences and security magazines. She authors many articles, is regularly featured in the media, and is sought after as a keynote speaker.

Jane is driven to build a more secure world and is obsessive about developing female talent in the industry. It's why she authored IN Security and created the movement and tribe.

JAMES LYNE

Global Head of Security Research
Sophos

A self-professed 'massive geek' and renowned cyber security expert, James Lyne is an information security speaker committed to educating those outside of the industry on security threats and best practice. Energetic, passionate, and charmingly nerdy, he has become a leading keynote presenter by maximizing the impact of his security expertise through engaging presentations.

Using live demonstrations, showing how cyber criminals operate in the real world, James can involve and inspire an audience whether they are a group of tech wizards or your average computer user. One keynote can convert forbidding tech jargon in to human language with the next sharing his technical expertise to those with extensive background knowledge.

His passion to make cyber security accessible and interesting has led to James founding his company Helical Leivity, a high-end security research firm developing cyber industry education tools that identifies and develops new talent. His roles as an instructor and Head of R&D at SANS means that keynotes are constantly updating and evolving.
